Macros in the Judaica Division of the Harvard College Library

Leveraging ALEPH Acquisitions Module Capabilities with Macro Express

Elizabeth Vernon
Judaica Technical Services Librarian
Judaica Division, Harvard College Library, Harvard University
vernon@fas.harvard.edu

Why Macros?

- Macros dramatically leverage ALEPH's capabilities
- Macros improve:
  - Productivity
  - Ergonomics
  - Accuracy
- Macros allow "customization" of ALEPH

What Macros?

- Created using Macro Express
- Macros used for:
  - Acquisitions
  - Cataloging
  - Barcoding

Why Acquisitions Macros?

- Most Judaica Division acquisitions done via approval plans

- In old online system, ordering and payment could be done simultaneously

- In Aleph, ordering and payment must be done as two separate processes
  - More time-consuming
  - Order numbers must be written down and re-keyed in to pay
- Judaica Division has many different funds - Aleph system for selecting and inputting a fund is cumbersome

Not Just Macros,
A New Acquisitions Solution

- Workflow Redesign
- Software
  - ALEPH
  - Macro Express
  - FileMaker Developer

Workflow Redesign

- What stayed the same:
  - “Cataloging on Receipt”
- What changed:
  - student assistants now do payment and end-processing instead of catalogers
  - all cataloging and acquisition statistics are automated

Software

- Aleph
- Macro Express
- FileMaker Developer

Results

- The acquisitions processing of one book (order, payment, statistics):
  - Without macros: approximately 46-58 keystrokes and mouse-clicks, plus writing down of order number, plus manual recording of statistics
  - With macros: approximately 10-19 keystrokes and mouse-clicks

- Able to maintain and improve on pre-Aleph productivity
- In FY2003 to date (mid-July to end of May):
  - fully processed (cataloging, acquisitions, barcoding) over 15,000 titles and over 19,000 pieces (not including paper serials and photographs)
- Statistics are fully automated
